

A CASE STUDY

COVID-19's Impact on Portfolio Companies

Providing Clarity for Portfolio Support During Unprecedented Times

CHALLENGE

COVID-19 has had a considerable impact on software spend and business operations across industries. As the pandemic continues to reshape the economy, a GLG client needed insight into increasing software needs and emerging technology gaps to understand how to best service its portfolio companies.

THE GLG APPROACH

Working in tandem with the client, GLG designed and executed a custom survey capturing shifts in technology spend and priorities, along with changes in the workplace policies and the anticipated long-term impact of COVID-19 on the technology industry. The results included responses from 100 board members, C-suite executives, and senior information technology executives across various industries.

OUTCOME

The insights gained from the survey helped GLG's client understand the coronavirus' impact on its portfolio companies and put together a strategy to meet its changing technology needs.
