

A CASE STUDY

Finding a Radiopharmaceutical Expert Witness

A Law Firm Needed an Expert with Specific Knowledge, Quickly

CHALLENGE

A law firm sought an expert witness with experience in the development process of radiopharmaceutical drugs. The firm wanted an expert with a specific background, and it needed to retain them within four days to meet its expert report deadline.

THE GLG APPROACH

The GLG Law team confirmed topics on which the expert witness would opine, including drug development, the radioactive compounds in imaging, sterile injectables and the tools that deliver injections, and the typical workflow to develop radiopharmaceutical drugs and types of common delays.

Using our network of approximately 1 million subject-matter experts, GLG sent candidates to the client within two days and set up complimentary screening calls over Zoom one day later.

OUTCOME

The four candidates who were sent to the client had an average of 30 years of experience in radiopharmaceuticals. The client retained two qualified experts within four days. GLG worked with the client team to negotiate a suitable rate for the experts' services.
